1. This memorandum is in response to your requirement dated 4 February 1964 requesting an analysis of the installation at Perkhushkovo, USSR.

2. This office generally concurs with the physical description of the installation as reported in DIA Report UPIR 9056-0226, Nov 63 (Reference c). It was determined however, via cable from Electronics Defense Laboratory, that the reported rhombic antenna observed nearby was in fact the Golitsyno Receiving Site (see Reference d). This site is located at 55-35N 37-03E or 7.5 nm southwest of the Perkhushkovo Installation.

25X1 3. Reference c is based on  A comparison with the 25X1 most recent mission (  ) reveals no significant changes at the installation.

25X1 4. The receiving site near Golitsyno is reported in NPIC Report R-150/62
25X1 (Reference d) and is based on  A comparison with the most recent mission  reveals the addition of five rectangularly shaped clearings, probably for FISHBONE antennas, within the antenna field. The attached line drawing gives the location and general size and orientation of these new clearings.
